Trade Statistical Handbook 2016
Between
China and Forum Island Countries
(PT&I China)

FOREWORD

While world trade has slowed in recent times, trade between China and the Pacific Islands continues to grow from strength to strength, with two-way trade almost doubling in 2015 to US$7.5 billion.

This is good news for the economic development of the Pacific Island Countries as they build links to the powerhouse of the world economy, China. Even as China's growth has slowed in recent times, it continues to account for 25% of global growth and has become the largest trading nation.

The fourteen self-governing, independent island nations of the Pacific Islands Forum exported $2.5 billion worth of goods to China in 2015, up from $2 billion in 2014.

China's exports to the Forum Island Countries doubled from $2.5 billion in 2014 to $5 billion in 2015, including significant sales of maritime vessels to help building the Pacific fishing and other industries.

Papua New Guinea (PNG), the largest Pacific Island economy, accounted for nearly $2 billion of the exports. PNG is the largest exporter of timber to China. It has also become an important exporter of Liquid Natural Gas(LNG) since its first LNG project came on-stream. Further LNG projects are planned. China has become a major investor in PNG and Metallurgical Corporation of China, which has an 85% share of Ramu Nickel mine, has also become a key exporter to China.

Across the rest of the Pacific Islands region, fish and fish products accounted for a significant proportion of the exports to China.

For the Pacific fishery, as well as for other resources such as timber, sustainability is critical and China and the Pacific Island Countries can benefit in the long term if we work together to protect the precious environment and resources of the Pacific.

The very reason that the region is able to supply high quality seafood, other foods and beverages, such as the famous Fiji Water, is the pristine environment of the Pacific.

We welcome stronger trade and investment links between China and the Pacific, to aid the sustainable development of the region.

There are good business opportunities for China, for those with a taste for the tropical ocean paradise of the Pacific.

There are also good opportunities for Pacific Islands businesses to access the China market.

Our Pacific Islands Trade and Investment Commission team in China is here to provide as much support as we can, to build trade, investment and tourism.
